

HEALTH, SAFETY AND SECURITY TRAINING

Road Transport and Driver Safety Management

3 day course

Classroom, online or in-house

Course overview

For many organisations the most dangerous thing an employee does is drive, and the risk sits outside the fence where the usual controls do not reach. This course covers managing it anyway. Delegates work through journey risk assessment and the question of whether a trip is necessary at all, driver selection, licensing and competence, and fatigue management including hours, scheduling and the limits of countermeasures. Vehicle selection, maintenance and defect reporting are covered. In vehicle monitoring and telematics are addressed practically, including using the data to coach rather than to punish. The course closes on incident investigation, on load security, and on managing contractor and third party drivers.

What you will learn

- Assess journey risk and challenge whether a trip is necessary
- Select, license and verify the competence of drivers
- Manage fatigue through hours, scheduling and realistic countermeasures
- Select and maintain vehicles and run defect reporting
- Use telematics data to coach rather than to punish
- Secure loads and manage vehicle specific hazards
- Investigate road incidents and manage third party drivers

Who should attend

- Fleet and transport managers
- Safety officers with driving populations
- Logistics and distribution supervisors
- Human resources staff managing driver employment
- Operations managers with mobile workforces
